Raised Southern is a simple story of the Philip and Opal Harrison family beginning in the mid 1940 s to the late 1960 s. Happiness is the main theme as the four Harrison brothers; Jerry, Larry, Don and Johnny grew up poor but never realized that poor people were supposed to be unhappy. The pranks that all family members were guilty of are included, because none were malicious. Instead, the laughter only strengthened family devotion. Dad was occasionally the guilty party. Once, while visiting with Mom s brother, Ocie, and his family, Dad managed to slip a rubber wiener in Uncle Ocie s hot dog bun. About the second bite, he chewed on this difficult wiener and got condiments smeared on his face. He immediately turned to Dad, and yelled, PHILIP! All of us nearly fell on the floor with laughter. The love and laughter from this meal will be remembered a lifetime. The trips the family took were made with a minimum of cost. One of the longest took the Harrisons, along with Uncle Ocie s family, to Maggie Valley, N.C. On the way we sang gospel songs, had contests counting vehicles, and read Burma-Shave signs. We made coffee from hot tap water while staying in a motel that looked cheap enough to be inexpensive. It was a blur of excitement as we watched cowboy shoot-outs in the streets and ordered sarsaparilla from a painted lady. The trip became extremely important because, not long after the trip, Uncle Ocie died. Both of our parents worked full time, so often Mama would come home to four hungry boys, tugging on her skirt and pleading for food....
