Before this, it appears, there was no creation, excepting that of the angels, who are spirits. That these had their existence before this world, is evident from what God says to Job respecting the creation of the world, in his solemn address to him, Job. xxxviii. 6, 7. Whereupon are the foundations there of fastened? Or who laid the corner stone thereof, when the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy? When we attend strictly to the holy scriptures, and to the manifest sense and import of them, we find there is much reason to conclude, there never was, or will be any other creation, excepting that of the angels, than what was done and completed in those six days, the work of each one of which is mentioned in the chapter before us. All the infinitely important ends of creation, and of divine providence, are to be answered in God's government over the angels, over the several objects, which were created in six days. Of...
